Discussion:

There are almost no relation between of the function of management and function of project, from my opinion there are one or two. Let's start with It fundamentally centers around the executives of undertaking to accomplish principle objective. Both of them complementary to each other in different ways. With this background in mind the article aims at bridging these two popular management practices. The concepts are compared via repetitiveness, time perspective, activity focus, customer involvement and goal orientation. Process orientation can enhance learning between projects and transfer of experience and enhance a cultural shift in the organization towards a more holistic thinking among the project team members. After a quick theoretical introduction the two cases are presented with their characteristics concerning process and project management.
