A typical way to address the function of management is that, any organization must contain these four top positions, which are the back bones and the buddy controller of the establishment. The four functions are planning, organizing, leading and controlling.

Once you plan the process and determine the objectives, the organizing then should be assembling and coordinating the leading and controlling of making sure the work is well measured and individuals are Maintained and guided to achieve the objectives.

On the other hand, all what been said it can't be done without considering the functions project which is the field where the objectives become real or goals accomplished for the organization through a number of managers. Those managers department are highly knowing worldwide are Human resource, sales and marketing, development, productions or operations, customer service, finance and accounts finally administration and IT.
